
Orlando Redfish Report 11/7/09

Posted by Capt Chris M - 2009/11/07 15:40

Some high winds have descended upon central Florida and are forecast to remain with us for much of the coming week. The wind has made sight fishing difficult but we have managed to catch some nice redfish and seatrout despite the challenging conditions. Water levels are still quite high but the temperature has dropped significantly with yesterday morning's water at 66 degrees. If conditions allow you to find the fish, they have been biting.

Last week, prior to the arrival of the cooler temperatures, I made a trip to Mosquito Lagoon with my friend Mike. We hoped we would be able to find a few tarpon lingering around. We only saw a couple and did not get any bites. The redfish and large seatrout, however, were much more cooperative. We caught several of each on a DOA shrimp and used the Baitbuster for some redfish double hookups.

<http://www.floridafishinglessons.com/sitebuilder/images/oct2909redfish3-536x355.jpg>

This Monday, I made a solo trip to Mosquito Lagoon. It was the first day of the cloudy and blustery weather. I used 5.5 inch DOA Cal lures in Stark Naked and Silver Mullet colors to catch several trout over 24 inches as well as three redfish from 30-38 inches. All were caught around schools of small mullet holding around patches of shallow grass and sand.

<http://www.floridafishinglessons.com/sitebuilder/images/nov209redfish-537x357.jpg>

Tuesday, I fished with Larry and his wife Debbie. The wind was blowing when we started but they both caught several trout to 25 inches using the CAL tails. We found a few schools of redfish as well as scattered singles during the day. The wind and clouds made it tough to see and cast to the fish. A handful of trout were caught and released but no redfish made it to the boat.

The forecast for Friday was for winds up to 20 mph. Despite the poor conditions, Canadian residents Mark and Marianne wanted to give it a try anyway. We spent the day along some lee shorelines attempting to avoid the choppy open waters. Both caught some nice redfish including a 48 inch brute.

<http://www.floridafishinglessons.com/sitebuilder/images/nov0609redfish-532x343.jpg>

<http://www.floridafishinglessons.com/sitebuilder/images/nov0609redfish3-528x346.jpg>

When the wind dies down, the cooler water should produce some good fishing for tailing redfish. Trophy trout have made their way onto the flats and can be found in the shallow sand holes throughout the day. We have been seeing some black drum each day as well. The DOA shrimp is one of the few lures that is effective on all three species. Fish it slowly along the bottom for best results.

Capt. Chris Myers
Mosquito Lagoon Fishing Guide

=====

yhzuJyFr

Posted by rslifE01 - 2012/01/05 03:41

The first thing you need to think about when you consider buying gold is what wow gold kind of market you are supporting. There have been reports in the media about world of warcraft gold people working for really crappy pay as gold farmers. What do you do buy wow gold when you run out of gold? Do you buy more and more and more, runescape gold and get caught in a bad cycle where you repeatedly risk any of the swtor credits above points. The gold isn't going to last you long, and then you will be right back to where you started, but you will also have less money cheapest wow gold on your real life bank account. Lets summarize this shall we. When buying gold, you buy rs gold risk losing money and gear with no gold to be had because you got cheap wow gold hacked. You risk getting banned for buying gold. You play with your reputation among your peers with supporting somethings most of them hate the very thought of. You will support an industry that exploit the people working for them. You will spend real life money on a short term fix for your in-game economical problems and it might cause you to get stuck in a gold-buying-spiral. We have satisfied thousands of customers with our excellent work. We believe you will feel happy just as our other customers buying World of Warcraftgold from our store.

=====